Active Ingredients:

Chaga (Inonotus Obliquus)

100% pure Siberian Chaga extract is an all-natural immune-boosting superfood known for its high content of melanin and superoxide dismutase (SOD) which functions as a powerful antioxidant. Chaga contains numerous vitamins and minerals. It is also one of the densest sources of Vitamin B5 which supports adrenal glands and digestive organs. This tonic mushroom has long been used in traditional Siberian and Chinese herbalism. The consumption of adaptogenic mushrooms may produce beneficial effects within the nervous system, immune system, GI tract, cardiovascular system, and the endocrine system.

Ganoderma Lucidum Extract

Ganoderma, also known as Reishi mushroom, is a fungus that some people describe as "tough" and "woody" with a bitter taste. The fruiting body (above-ground part) and mycelium (filaments connecting a group of mushrooms) are used as medicine. Reishi mushroom is also used for boosting the immune system.

Stevia Extract

Stevia leaf extract comes from the stevia plant, which originates in South America. The primary components extracted from the stevia leaf are called steviol glycosides. Extract from these plants are used in stevia sweeteners to provide a sweet taste without calories in many foods and beverages.

Cordyceps Sinensis Extract

Cordyceps is a fungus that lives on certain caterpillars in the high mountain regions of China. It is known for improving athletic performance and many other conditions. Cordyceps also improves immunity by stimulating cells and specific chemicals in the immune system. Cordyceps are thought to increase the body's production of the molecule adenosine triphosphate (ATP), which is essential for delivering energy to the muscles. This may improve the way your body uses oxygen, especially during exercise.
